Présentation

Near the Suisse Normande, this building from 1780 is part of a group of 8 restored half-timbered and cob agricultural buildings. Respectful of old techniques mixing wood, cob, lime and hemp, the owners wanted to make it a charming place. Initially, the Bergerie site was just a 6,000 m2 pasture with the half-timbered buildings of the old ruined 18th century farm and only a few fruit trees. It has become the playground of Sylvie, passionate about flowers and colors, and her husband Frédéric who have completely shaped the place by creating a magnificent lush and colorful garden, where everyone will find their privacy, tranquility and space. .
Fresh air, walks and rest await you!
